Background

I grew up in New Zealand and completed my schooling years there before moving to Australia.

Professionally, I have practised optometry in metro and regional settings across Australia. My research during my honours year at university has been published in two papers. I have built rapport with patients of all backgrounds, worked under pressure in fast paced settings, supported my teammates and learnt from mistakes. Most recently, I completed a programme to become an optometry business partner at my previous company.

A believer in giving back to the community, I have volunteered at organisations across New Zealand, Australia and Brazil. This ranged from sight screening at the Special Olympics in Wellington to working with children in a low socioeconomic community in São Paulo.

- Each section in their individual box
- Reduced opacity of background colour so we can still see the background image peek through
- This particular image moves ahead of the text on desktop view (order: -1;)

I hope to write programmes that will benefit businesses and the community, to play a part in improving the diversity within the field and to build a career that inspires me for decades to come.

I love to explore new places and see breath-taking sights. I tend to plan travel around food but if I must prioritize experiences over convenience, I will go with what makes me happy.

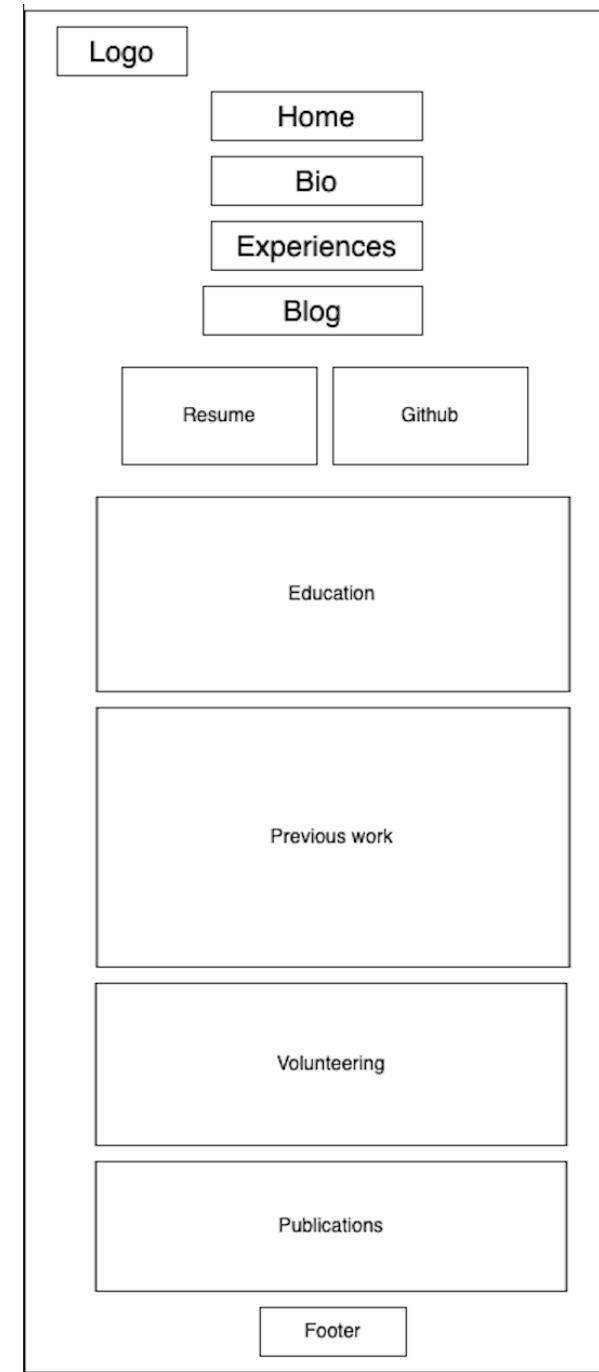

I like all things I need! I need: Wellington for its vibrant food scene and delicious pastries. I enjoy our new restaurants and cuisines, love a good oat milk latte, and dabble in pottery. I try to spare a moment with my cheeky Shiba Inu puppy, Eddy-Mame.
